This Newsletter brought to you by Rev. Marcela Rojas

Let's talk lunch. We are extending the opportunity for your ministry to sponsor an SBMA luncheon in 2025. A thank you along with a link to your ministry is featured on the newsletter. We have enjoyed pizza, barbecue, latin cuisine etc, to feed aprox 35 people. Plates, cups, utensils and ice tea are provided. Several months are currently open, reply to this email to select your preferred month to sponsor.

As another school year is starting, we pray in Jesus name, over the children, teenagers, teachers and school board. May all come to the knowledge of Jesus Christ.

I am grateful for private Christian Schools, I am grateful for all the Christian homeschool families. I pray that more God fear Christians step into the role of public school education leadership. May they be the majority on the public school boards. May we, the light of the world go into the darkness and not hide from it. I pray we make public schools safe and righteous again.

I pray we are not willing to leave behind the innocent public school kindergarteners of the unsaved parents, to be prey for the darkness of this world.-Rev Marcela Rojas.

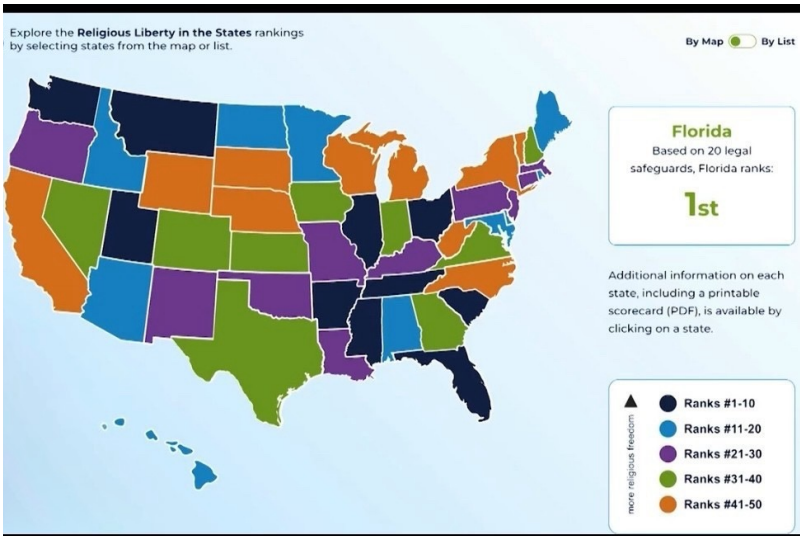
Pastors, have you recently thought about the practical ways to protect your congregation and visitors ? Are you aware of the resources available to help you? Perhaps that could be a helpful conversation among your fellow Pastors. Please note on religious freedom protection, while Washington ranking in at number eight, recently in May 2025, in the violent attack on the Christian Rally in Seattle our Christian rights, in my opinion, to put it mildly, were poorly protected.- Rev Marcela Rojas.



“First Liberty Institute recently released a Religious Freedom Index ranking all 50 states. Florida ranked first, while California came in at 43rd. Washington state ranked eighth. But Barton said laws are only as effective as the leaders who enforce them. "There might be some states with decent laws, but they're not defending or upholding them."

First Liberty Institute leaders said they'll push for federal funding to be cut from cities that fail to protect religious freedom. "There has to be a legal, civil, and financial consequence for people who operate like this," Johnson said.”- PAUL PETITTE

“Prominent faith leaders across the country are holding a Seattle church community in prayer after one of its members was fatally shot during a young adult service last week.
Seattle police are searching for a suspect who reportedly killed 28-year-old Lebron Givaun as he arrived with his family to a BBQ and young adult service at Pursuit Church, which is located near the University of Washington.
According to surveillance video, a gunman can be seen exiting a white vehicle and opening fire before returning to the car, KING5, a Seattle news outlet, reports. Estimates indicate that about 30 rounds of bullets were shot into the crowd gathering in the parking lot for the event.”- CBN news post.

SBMA August 12th Speaker: Katye Campbell

Katye Campbell has a heart for both ministry and education from a young age. She graduated summa cum laude from Oklahoma Baptist University and pursued her dream of teaching middle school music. She and her husband Jim, the lead and founding pastor of Bay West Church, have been married for 27 years and have three children — one still in Brevard Public Schools and two attending Florida State University.Over the years, Katye has served in many roles, from leading worship and teaching Bible studies to coordinating moms' groups, organizing community events, and leading mission trips overseas. Before joining the Brevard School Board, where she is now serving her second term, she spent years teaching middle school music, substitute teaching, and working with students in Kentucky, Texas, and Florida. She is an active school volunteer, continuing to invest in students whenever she can, and mentors students through organizations like Take Stock in Children. She also serves on the board for The Children's Hunger Project and works with Junior Achievement. Katye considers her service on the School Board a calling from God and counts it a blessing to live out her faith in both the church and the community.
